

INFORMATION NOTE

Establishment of the Competition and Consumer Protection Commission (CCPC)

The Competition and Consumer Protection Commission (CCPC) was established on 31 October 2014, by the merger of the National Consumer Agency (NCA) and the Competition Authority, as provided for under the Competition and Consumer Protection Act 2014. All functions and legislative powers that were, before that date vested in the NCA and in the Competition Authority, are now vested in the Commission. These include powers that were previously vested in the NCA for the imposition and collection of annual levies from regulated financial services providers.

The CCPC has made Regulations for the imposition of its 2023 levies and the levy notices are being issued by the CCPC direct to the firms being levied, with payment to be made into the relevant CCPC bank account (details below). The levies charged in the year are in respect of the cost of the performance of the personal finance consumer information and education functions in that same calendar year. In 2023, these functions are being performed by the CCPC throughout the year and the levies are in respect of this complete calendar year.

The CCPC aims to be as efficient and cost effective as possible in the collection of its 2023 levies. It would greatly facilitate the work and minimise the cost incurred in debt collection if firms would make their payment within the 28 days allowed.

The interest rate chargeable for a late payment of the Levy is the European Central Bank main refinancing rate plus 8% points. A list of firms with outstanding levy liabilities may be shared with The Central Bank of Ireland.

Please note that we have new bank details since 2021 and ensure to update your records before payment of your 2023 levy notice.

Payment of the levies should only be made by Electronic Funds Transfer to the bank account set up by CCPC for this purpose:
